

YOUNGEST STUDENT WINS HIGHEST HONOR

Morton Gottschall, 18 Years Old,
Gets Summa Cum Laude
at City College.

AVERAGE BEST IN 10 YEARS

Entire Graduating Class Takes Oath of Allegiance to the City.

Asram I. Elkus of the State Board of Regents in his address at the City College commencement exercises yesterday, declared that the elementary schools of the city were at fault in not providing vocational training for those children whose education ends in those schools. Supreme Court Justice Harrington Putnam administered to the graduates an oath of allegiance to the city and pinned to the sleeve of the eighty-four graduates a miniature American flag. The ceremony was held at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Many relatives and friends were present. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Herbert Chapman, rector of the church, assisted by the Rev. Albert J. Monk, assistant rector. The church was decorated with palms and smilax and along the center aisle were tall standards covered with smilax and topped with white peonies.

The bride entered the church with her brother, Mr. Harrington Putnam, who gave her away. She wore a gown of white satin with a long train. Her veil of tulle was held by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a small bouquet of orange blossoms and a nosegay of white roses. Miss Elizabeth Durfee was the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. Her costume was of pale pink satin with a long and full blue tulle. She wore a yellow clip with trimmed with orange and white tulle and carried a bouquet of white roses with a cluster of orange. The bride party was met at the entrance of the church and escorted to the altar.

Four Senior Addresses.

Four members of the graduating class, chosen for excellence in studies, delivered the senior addresses. Maxwell James had as his subject "The Next Step: William Hasenfratz." The next speaker was Louis J. Mutterer, "Graduate and Service." Morton Gottschall, "Idealism." Of the eighty-four men who were graduated, Morton Gottschall, 18 years old, was the youngest, and to him went the highest honors of the class. He received a "summa cum laude," the gold medal given to the student who ranks highest in all the studies of the year, the Gen. Treman prize of one hundred and fifty dollars, gold medal in mental philosophy and history, the Prager memorial prize for English, the Steers prize in art and seven honorable mentions. His average for the four years of study is 93 per cent, the highest received in ten years.

The other medals awarded were: The Ward gold medal for proficiency in history, Leo Paschodky, sophomore; the Ward medal for proficiency in chemistry, Julius Weinberger, in natural history, Joseph Hertzstein, senior, in natural philosophy, Lester L. Israel, senior, in political science, Bernard Meyer, senior, in English, Leon Moses, junior, in Latin, Solomon Blum, senior, in French, August Lodato, senior, in German, Bertram D. JOHN F. DES CASE, who died recently in Brooklyn and whose will was filed for probate yesterday, left the income of his entire estate to his mother, Marie Des Case, for life. After her death his wife, Marie E. Des Case, receives $10,000 in cash and the residue of the estate with the exception of $3,000, which goes to a cousin and $1,000 each to two non-relatives.

DR. JOHN P. HARTLEY, THE SURGEON, DIES

First Cured Neuralgia by Cutting Ganglion at Base of Skull.

WAS A BRAIN SPECIALIST

"He Was America's Foremost Surgeon, in My Opinion," Says Dr. A. B. Johnson.

Dr. Frank Hartley, one of the world's foremost surgeons and brain specialists, died yesterday of Bright's disease after an illness of several weeks at his home, 61 West Forty-ninth street.

He will always be known in surgery, according to the testimony of distinguished doctors, as the originator of a complete series of operations upon the skull and brain. His famous fibrous of the ganglion of the fifth cranial nerve marked the first successful cure of neuralgia.

The Hartley is survived by his wife and a half-brother, Edward Hartley. At the time of his death he was attending surgeon of the New York Hospital, professor of clinical surgery at Columbia and consulting surgeon of the French, General Memorial and Nyaok hospitals; member of the Clinical Society, American Medical Association, Southern and Maine societies and the University, New York Athletic, Automobile, Nassau and Princeton clubs. During his career he had been attending surgeon to Bellevue, Roosevelt and the Bayshore hospitals and consulting surgeon to the Italian, Patterson and White Plains hospitals.

"Aside from the operation which made his fame general," said Dr. Alexander Johnson, last night, "he was known among surgeons to be extraordinarily skillful at operations of any sort; careful, accurate, complete and masterly. His claims to distinction ranked him in my mind as America's foremost surgeon."

There had been many attempts before Dr. Hartley's to cure neuralgia by cutting the essential points at the base of the brain. There are three branches, and the failure of these attempts was due to the fact that no operator had dared to sever all three. Dr. Hartley, and a little later Kraus of Berlin, devised a way to make an entrance in front of the ear and behind the eye, lifting away the brain and severing the ganglion completely.

Dr. Hartley was born in Washington June 19, 1856, son of the Hon. John Fairfield Hartley, Assistant Secretary of State under Lincoln. After graduation from Emerson Institute and from Princeton in 1877 he took his degree from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1880. Two years were passed in post-graduate research in Vienna and Leipzig. Princeton conferred the degree of LL. D. upon him in 1910.

Doctor of Arts—William Warren of New York city; Elliott Hunt Pendleton, lawyer, editor and reformer of Cincinnati; Walter Elmer Fernald, alumnus of Boston; Waldfried Riese, medical scientist, of Atlanta, Ga.

Latin Oration by Gifford.

In Sanders Theatre, after a prayer by Prof. L. C. Moore, a Latin oration in Latin oration by George Hunsay Gifford, a dissertation entitled "Changing Values" by Daniel Sargent, and a speech upholding the activities of the Harvard Socialist Club by Parke J. White. A speech entitled "The People Versus the Law" was delivered by Zacharias Chaffee, Jr., who is taking his degree as a lawyer. He made an effective appeal for a more sensible attitude toward the judiciary of the country on the part of the people.

To Edgar H. Wells, who is leaving Harvard to take charge of the philanthropic work of J. P. Morgan, Dean Briggs presented a loving cup from the alumni association upon which was inscribed "To Edgar Huyekup Wells '97, son and brother of Harvard University." Dean Briggs named Mr. Wells as the man who has done more for the country than any other since the Harvard "not a collection of schools in Cambridge but a brotherhood as wide as the world." President Lowell spoke with pride of the development of the medical and business schools of Harvard.

Chorus Honors Dr. Muller.

The alumni chorus sang a selection as a mark of courtesy to Dr. Lauro Muller of Brazil. He made a short address in Portuguese.

President Lowell in his address said: "More things, such as buildings, etc., were given to Harvard this year than in any other year within my memory." He said that in addition to the gift of the $200,000 library building constructed by Mrs. George D. Widener, gifts in money reached $1,000,000, of which $100,000 was from the class of '88, which is celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary.

The following new members of the board of overseers were elected: George Herbert Palmer, '94, of Cambridge; William Roscoe Thayer, '86, of Cambridge; Frederick Chester Shattuck, '88, of Boston; Harlan Page Allen, '74, of
